

CALL FOR INNOVATIVE PROPOSALS UNDER DIC

Motilal Nehru National Institute of Technology Allahabad invites innovative proposals from students in order to harness the talent and potential available with students under the MHRD sponsored project with BHU Varansi and IIT BHU as Hub partners on "Design and Innovation Centre" which aims to provide a platform to students and researchers having zeal for learning and creativity and passion to convert their creative ideas into significant, more viable design innovations.

The student projects supported in this call are expected to recognise a real need and should target to solve a relevant health problem. The projects may aim at developing affordable solutions for low-resource settings, e.g. rural needs, or focus on higher-end products or services. Developing innovative processes, developing prototypes, demonstration and testing and standardization may be included in the mini projects.

Project topics may include following aspects:

- Digital solutions for health and wellbeing
- Use of big data in health and well-being
- Solutions that help bring health services to those most in need
- User-friendly methods for health counselling
- Health impacts of environmental issues
- Development of software for any health related aspects or human well being
- Biomedical interventions
- Medical Instrumentation, Medical Informatics.
- Any other
